National Park Service
OPERATION of the NATIONAL PARK SYSTEM
Funding History

Funding going directly to the parks for operations and preservation is a growing component of Park Management funding with the remainder going to Regional and Servicewide programs.

Prioritized/Earmarked Operations: Increases to park operating budgets will improve a wide range of operating needs. Core mission responsibilities will be addressed. Threats to safety due to deteriorated infrastructure will be eliminated. Park operating hours, tours, and programs will be increased. Educational partnerships with schools and outreach organizations will be enriched. Law enforcement patrols will be expanded.

Natural Resources Challenge: Increases allow 17 parks to expand actions to control invasive species as well as stimulate recovery of threatened and endangered species. This will help control exotic species from displacing natural vegetation and adversely impacting entire ecosystems.

Coral Reef Preservation: Funds activities at 10 parks to implement Executive Order 13089 (Coral Reef Protection). Targets threatened coral reef resources at park units in the Pacific Islands and Southeast Region including National Park of American Samoa, Dry Tortugas National Park, and Salt River Bay National Historical Park and Ecological Preserve.

U.S. Park Police: Provides increased funding for Park Police operational activities.

Lewis and Clark Bicentennial Celebration: Continues preparation at 8 park units and the Lewis and Clark Trail for the Lewis and Clark Bicentennial celebration. Funds will be used to develop educational and interpretive programs, resource protection, and visitor safety measures for the increase in visitation projected for the bicentennial event.

Native American Partnerships: Funds activities at Badlands and Death Valley National Parks to support the Administration's "Revitalizing Indian Country" initiative. Native Americans seek greater involvement in NPS planning and management decisions and these funds will provide new opportunities for cooperative resource conservation programs involving archeology between the NPS and Indian tribes.

Counter-terrorism and Other Enforcement Issues: Increases security measures at 4 parks to deal with anti-government, anti-environmental, and anti-racial minority activities, as well as organized crime involving drug trafficking activities. Provides increased patrols, electronic equipment monitoring, and intelligence sharing. Will improve the NPS ability to prevent or respond to terrorist actions at high visibility and symbolic sites such as Boston National Historical Park and border parks such as Coronado National Memorial and Organ Pipe Cactus National Monument.

Vanishing Treasures: Addresses vanishing archeological and historical treasures in southwestern parks. Increases at four parks allow development and training of a skilled workforce and provision of appropriate expertise.

NATURAL RESOURCE FUNDING
Percent of Total Park Management Funding

The NPS commitment to preserve and protect natural resources is reflected in the increased proportion of total funding proposed for natural resource research and management.

- Invasive Control/Species Recovery in Parks. Park-specific increases that address a wide range of issues for the preservation of native species, from the reintroduction of native species to the control of competing exotics and from public education to law enforcement patrols.
- Resource Inventory and Monitoring. A two part program to record and analyze data about park resources.
 - ◆ Vegetative Mapping - USGS and NPS collaboration to produce detailed, computerized maps of the vegetation of the National Park System.
 - ◆ Parks Vital Signs Monitoring - Prototype program to determine environmental measures that can serve as “vital signs” to assess the health of park natural resources and measure changes.
- Water Resources Protection and Monitoring. Expansion of efforts to assess and improve water quality.
 - ◆ Monitor Water Quality in Parks and Assess Conditions — Establishes an on-going Servicewide program to detect and assess changes in water resources.
 - ◆ Expand Water Resources Restoration and Protection — Expands the number of projects in the areas of water rights, water quality, water resource planning, floodplain and fisheries management, watershed and wetland protection, water resource-related policy and regulatory analysis, and water resource data analysis and interpretation. In FY 2001 emphasis will be on studies to support NPS water right claims and assist in negotiating settlements.
- Air Quality Improvement. Program identifies, measures, and reduces air pollutants originating within parks from such sources as vehicles, energy generation, maintenance activities, wood burning and prescribed fires.
- Natural Resource Data Management. Development and maintenance of broad natural resource databases and data management tools on the web for field managers and development of information on natural resources for the public in order to stimulate and facilitate research, data synthesis, and interpretation.
- Cooperative Ecosystem Studies Units. Interdisciplinary, multi-agency partnerships with research universities where NPS staff will work with parks to bring specialized expertise and other forms of assistance from universities or other Federal partners to address park needs.
- Learning Centers. A public-private partnership to invest in centers that host researchers, bring researchers closer to the parks’ natural resources, facilitate providing research information to the public, assist park staffs, and encourage researchers from all disciplines to use parks as places of inquiry.
